

WebSTAR™ DPW900™ Wireless LAN Adapter PC Card

Description

The WebSTAR™ DPW900™ PC Card is an 802.11g wireless network adapter that is designed to interface with most home or office computers that are equipped with a 32-bit Cardbus interface, Type II PC Card slot.

The DPW900 provides an exceptional wireless solution for the on-the-go professional or the home network enthusiast looking for a wireless solution to share a high-speed Internet service with other PCs.

The DPW900 is designed and built to meet the 802.11g wireless specifications and offers data rates up to 54 Mbps. It is also backward compatible with 802.11b networks. In addition to providing the data connection to the PC from the wireless network, the PC Card interface also provides power to the wireless adapter and eliminates the need for an external power supply.

The DPW900 features support for 64- and 128-bit Wired Equivalency Privacy (WEP) encryption. Firmware is upgradeable to support Wi-Fi Protected Access, when available, or when used with the appropriate PC operating system.

Two highly visible LEDs on the side of the DPW900 indicate the status of power and wireless activity.

Wireless Utility

The DPW900 features an easy-to-use wireless network management utility that can be automatically installed on the user's PC by inserting the CD-ROM into the PC.

The wireless utility allows the user to create and save multiple user profiles. This capability allows the user to move between many wireless networks without manually reconfiguring the wireless and encryption settings. You can also diagnose and configure your wireless network settings with an online troubleshooting feature.
